

The New American Employment Program Can Help You Meet North Dakota's Workforce Needs

The State of North Dakota is working together with employers and community partners to offer training, employment and other support to refugees and other newly arrived individuals so they can live, work and thrive in their new communities.

Trained career navigators and case managers will work directly with employers and individuals to meet local workforce challenges.

SUPPORT FOR EMPLOYERS

- Connection to work-authorized job applicants
- Translation and interpretation support
- Consultation on cultural and language questions

Employers will benefit by filling open positions while developing and retaining a more trained, diverse and skilled workforce

SUPPORT FOR INDIVIDUALS

- Skill assessment
- Training and skill development
- Job certification and licensing help
- Job placement guidance
- Resume and interview coaching
- Connect to community resources (English as a second language, etc.)

Individuals will benefit by finding meaningful employment within their new communities
